

Global Labor Institute Conference Series

The second annual North American meeting on labor, the environment and sustainability.

May 8 2006

A Sustainable World is Possible

The meeting will actively explore and debate topics ranging from Sustainability & the Resurgence of International Labor to Job Creation and Energy Alternatives.

The event promises to be a rare opportunity to meet and discuss with speakers representing diverse global bodies such as the United Nations, The European Trade Union Confederation and the IFCTU-African Regional Organization.

Join leading trade unionists from US and around the world to compare trade union strategies on organizing around environmental issues. Participate in frank discussions on climate change, energy policy, and corporate accountability. Learn how the fight to save the environment can help our efforts to organize new members and rebuild the labor movement.

Date: Monday, May 8th 2006

Venue: Cornell ILR Conference Center, 16 East 34th St, 6th Floor, New York City

Time: 8:30 am - 5:00 pm